THE real significance of the amazing program now being attempted at Washington lies less in what is actually being done than in the spirit which is moving the chief performers.

Johnson Warns Chiselers

General Johnson assures business men: "No experts or fixers are needed in formulating codes. . . . No one can get any special advantages in the carrying out of the recovery program."

"It is very unfortunate that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of the recovery program to victimize business men. This is chiseling of the worst order. "I hope business men understand this. And I want those who are setting up a 'racket' to fleece business men to understand this."

other bird, leaving the nest-owner to hatch them. And that ugly coward, the racketeer, has already laid quite a number of eggs which it hopes the Blue Eagle will hatch.

But the Blue Eagle is a fighting bird. It is carefully watching the coward's eggs, and smashing them before they hatch.

The coward eggs which have been found in the Blue Eagle's nest are particularly ugly ones. They are long and narrow, just the shape of a chisel. But the NRA officials who are sharpening the Blue Eagle's claws are confident most of these eggs will be smashed before hatched.

How Game Is Worked

Here's how they can get into the nest.

A small business man is a little perplexed over the provisions of the NRA code which apply to his business. Perhaps he has found some of the regulations a little burdensome.

One day he receives a shrewdly-worded letter. It implies a threat of swift and sure punishment by the NRA unless he promptly joins a "protective association."

He is urged to "membership fee" of from $2 to $10. Or perhaps the letter assures the business man that by joining the "protective association" he will be exempted from certain provisions of his code. It is intimated, for instance, that he will be allowed the 60-hour rather than the 40-hour week. The "association" will protect him, says the letter, from any trouble with the NRA, provided he pays his dues promptly.

That is how the racketeer cowards are laying their eggs in the Blue Eagle's nest in various cities all over the country. Gravel Whelan, New York's NRA chief, has thrown the full power of his local NRA organization against these chiselers, and the NRA officials in Washington are urging every community to smash these eggs before they hatch.

Johnson Issues Warning

General Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, has issued warnings against unscrupulous lawyers, "fixers" and "experts" who claim peculiar knowledge, skill, or influence in formulating trade codes. The Post Office Department has promised prompt prosecution under the mail fraud laws whenever the chiselers have used the

Football Practice Will Start Friday Jones Issues Call

Possibility of Opening the Season Here Sept. 15
With Locksburg

12 MEN ARE LOST

Prospects Not Favorable,
Most of Games to Be Played Here

With a possibility of a football game here September 15, Coach Teddy Jones Thursday issued a call to all candidates for this year's team to meet with him Friday for the first practice session.

Football equipment was being issued Thursday afternoon.

Coach Jones arrived in Hope Wednesday. He attended a coaching school at Hot Springs this summer in which some of the leading football instructors of the nation gathered, including Hooty (Hunk) Anderson, Knute Rockne's successor at Notre Dame; Howard Jones of Southern California, and many others.

With the loss of 12 letter men, prospects are not as encouraging as in past years, Coach Jones said. Those lost included: Lewallen, Jones, Breeding, Green, Browning, Jacks, Rowe, E. Schooley, C. Schooley, Smith, McKee, Stroud and Young.

Berry and Kennedy, ends from the 1932 season, will return. Mitchell will be back at guard. There is a possibility that Richards will play again at guard, if an injured hand will permit. Chamberlain is slated for the center position.

In the backfield, Brown, Turner and Harper will be seen. Mutt Hargis, who was ineligible last season, is expected to play at fullback.

Other candidates who will fight for a position are: Anderson, Green, Herndon, Moore, Turner, Owen, Anders, Browning, Holly, Cargile, Parker, Wallace, Rider, Aslin and Brumfield, the latter played tackle for Broken Bow, Okla., high school last year.

A game is pending with Locksburg for September 15. An effort is being made to open a season here. The balance of the schedule: Sept. 22—Ashdown (night) here. Sept. 29—Coudens (night) here. Oct. 6—Lewisville (night) here. Oct. 13—Magnolia (night) here. Oct. 28—Texarkana (afternoon) there. Nov. 3—Waldo (night) here. Nov. 10—Prescott (undecided on place). Nov. 17—DeQueen (night) here. Nov. 24—Horatio (night) here. Nov. 30—Nashville (night) here.

Urschel Home Guarded After Autos Circle Block

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—An extra guard was thrown around the Charles F. Urschel mansion Wednesday after a large sedan was reported to have circled the block several times. The home has been guarded day and night since Urschel, oil millionaire, was ransomed by his family from kidnapers for $200,000. Additional protection, however, was ordered by the government after one of the guards reported the mysterious sedan's movements.

Cobb Forecasts Cotton Control

Arkansas Farmers to Get $11,334,000 for Reduction Campaign

MARIANNA—(AP)—Cully A. Cobb appealed to cotton farmers Thursday to "make a clean job" of their campaign to control production.

Speaking at the annual experiment station meeting here, the Cotton Production administrator said "nothing must be permitted to mar the wonderfully fine work already done, and each man must take it on himself to see that there is no ground for criticism."

Beyond this, he declared, we must devise a long-time production program that will guarantee a sort of stability that comes from balancing our supply of cotton against the world demand for it. Of $109,000,000 to be distributed in the cotton belt, Arkansas will receive $11,334,000 for its share in cotton reduction campaign.

Confers With Growers—Cully A. Cobb, chief of the Cotton Division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said Wednesday that controlled planting for at least two more years and "some sort of domestic allotment plan" will be the mainstays of the 1934 cotton production program.

At the same time, Cobb said the NRA code for ginners, to be adopted soon, will include provisions for the prohibition of certain "abusive practices and policies" in the ginning industry which he said had been costly "to both producers and spinners."

Plans for a meeting of Midsouth growers here September 5 were made during a series of conferences Cobb had with growers. The meeting is one of three called by Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture.

One of the conferences at Memphis, Dallas and Atlanta, Cobb declared, "we hope to get very definite suggestions as to what the farmers and their leaders want and feel certain they can put into effect."

"Our 1934 program will include some sort of domestic allotment plan. There will be control of acreage planted to cotton.

"In order to be of material benefit, this program must be continued for at least two more years and perhaps more. We definitely plan on controlled production in 1934 and 1935.

Business Revival Shown in Report

Best Gains Are Made in Wholesale and Jobbing
—NRA Helps

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Business improvement contrary to the usual seasonal downward trends was shown in many instances in July and August, the monthly report of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank for the Eighth Federal Reserve District showed Thursday.

Most of the business measurements during July showed a continuation of the revival begun after the banking holiday. The best gains were made in wholesaling and jobbing, the sales volume being greater than in June or in July a year ago.

Activities in iron and steel were well sustained and deliveries of raw materials, notably pig iron and coke were the largest for any single month in more than two years. Lumber and bituminous coal production exceeded the previous month and also July, 1932.

The showing of retail business was less favorable, although there was a fair gain as contrasted with July last year, but the seasonal decrease from June was larger than anticipated. Since the last week in July there has been a perceptible slowing down, both in trade and industry. Among the factors held responsible were seasonal trends and uncertainty arising out of the working out of codes under the NRA program. The marketing season beginning in August found wholesale purchasing more conservative than a month or two earlier.

In figures department stores sales in July were 5.9 per cent larger than the same month last year, but 25.9 per cent less than in June this year.

Further improvement in employment was noted, sentiment in the business community and with the public was optimistic, the report said.

The St. Louis Terminal railroad, handling interchanges for 28 lines, reported 79,492 interchanges in July, compared with 64,279 in July, 1932. Estimated tonnage of the Federal Barge line between St. Louis and New Orleans in July was 134,000 tons, against 109,855 tons in June and 96,643 tons in July last year.

Commercial failures in the district numbered 60 in July, the same as in June, but in July last year the number was 109.

Consumers Asked to Sign Pledges

Organization Meeting at City Hall—To Canvass
Entire City

Various women organizations of Hope will meet at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at city hall to organize teams for a house to house canvass of the city to get consumers signed up under the Blue Eagle of the NRA.

For weeks employers have struggled to make financial adjustments necessary to observe NRA regulations. It's now up to the consumers to support and patronize establishments who are listed under the wings of the Blue Eagle.

Each house in the city is expected to be called upon to obtain pledges in the president's re-employment program. Workers will distribute a NRA Blue Eagle consumer's sticker to each signer of the pledge. Workers will also be supplied with pledge cards and worker's buttons.

Work Is Delayed On Master Code

Action Is Not Expected Until Middle of Next Week

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A delay until the middle of next week on the master code intended to blanket the millions of retail workers over the land was indicated Wednesday as Arthur D. Whitledge, a deputy administrator of the NRA, presented a revised version to retailers representatives for consideration.

Work on this wage and work hour code has assumed dominant importance at the NRA, where the other chief topic was the failure of Henry Ford to indicate his attitude on the code embracing the gigantic automobile industry.

The retailers code was described as altered in many respects from previous drafts, but not drastically. The text was withheld.

As the groups of executives representing the nation's largest retail establishments began consideration of the new charter, which would include druggists and grocers in the details can be worked out satisfactorily, Whiteside gave them until next week to agree. He indicated that on Wednesday the code was intended to be in the hands of President Roosevelt for promulgation. Some 5,000,000 or more workers are said to be affected.

5 ARE INJURED SERIOUSLY, 1 MAY DIE HERE

Tragedy once more rode on the paved Fulton highway, a stretch of road in which several lives have been snuffed out in the past three years.

Another horrible accident Wednesday night carried eight persons to Julia Chester hospital, five of which are seriously injured. One person, Henderson Jones, 60, was in an extremely critical condition Thursday and his recovery is doubtful.

The injured are:

Henderson, Jones, crushed chest, cuts and bruises about the body—condition critical.

Mrs. Connie Akin, daughter of Mr. Jones, fractured skull, badly cut and bruised—condition critical.

Jennie Lee Akin, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Connie Akin, both thighs broken, both feet crushed, head injuries—condition critical.

Mattie Akin, seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Connie Akin, broken left arm, cut about the head and face, badly bruised—condition not believed to be serious.

Dorothy Akin, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Connie Akin, brain concussion, abrasions and bruises about the body—condition serious.

Mrs. Lucy Brown, cuts about the head and face, badly bruised—condition critical.

Frances Jones, cuts and bruises—she was dismissed from the hospital after medical aid was given.

Bessie Jones, abrasions about the head and face—she was also dismissed after obtaining medical aid.

The accident overtook the ill-fated party en route from Fulton to Hope to attend a revival meeting here. All of the injured are at Julia Chester hospital.

The party, occupying a Chevrolet sedan driven by M. Y. Dance, the only person who escaped injury, crashed into an Arkansas Highway equipment truck which was parked along the road.

Conflicting stories were told as to whether the truck lights were burning. Dance says there were no lights. Will Ed Waller, driver of the truck, said he left the machine stalled along the road with the trailer light burning.

Dance was quoted as saying Thursday: "I first thought it would be a head-on collision. I swerved the car to prevent it. During the next few seconds there was a succession of impacts and rolling motion. The lights flickered. Things turned into blackness and confusion."

"Then there was a second of silence as the car came to a stop, then came pitiful cries as the injured begged for help. I pulled myself together and started helping all of them I could."

An ambulance went out to bring the injured to Hope, but passing motorists stopped and brought the party here. The accident occurred about four miles west of this city, near where Miss Vera Walker, first victim to be claimed by the crash, first victim to be killed. The collision occurred about 7:30 o'clock. The Dance car was badly damaged.

Boys Marooned On Ledge, Saved

Two Scouts Are Rescued
by Climbers After Two Days Work

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—(AP)—Three Boy Scouts marooned on a narrow ledge of Wallace mountain for two days, were lifted to a safe ledge 200 feet higher up the cliff Wednesday night by rescuers who succeeded in lowering them ropes.

They were placed under a physician's care and will be removed when their condition permits. There will be no serious difficulties in the descent from the ledge where they now are.

The rescue as made by three expert mountain climbers from the Lake Placid Club, a few miles away, after more than 24 hours of constant work. The youths were lifted one at a time from the two-foot ledge where they had huddled together in the freezing wind all night.

Attempting to climb the almost perpendicular cliff Wednesday morning, the scouts found themselves stranded on the perilous ledge with a drop of 400 feet below them. They could not go higher nor retreat their steps. They are William La Due, 21, Robert Glenn, 17, and Tyler Grey, 19, all of Plattsburgh.

Efforts to hoist them up on a rope had failed earlier in the day when the jagged edge of protruding rocks gnawed into the rope, but a new rope was dropped from a plane by Fred McLane, Lake Placid pilot.

In the party on the mountain top, who lifted the boys to safety, were George Reynolds of Lake Placid, former Colgate halfback, Paul Steer, a Harvard student, and Robert Downs, an experienced climber from Saranac Lake.

Approve Public Works in S. West

Construction Projects Will Be Launched by Administration

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The public works administration has approved expenditure of $45,415,000 from public works funds for construction work on 14 irrigation projects in Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Oregon and Utah.

The allotments will provide for drainage, replacement of temporary structures with permanent structures and improvements, so lands now under contract to receive water can be better served. None of the projects will bring new lands into cultivation, but the expenditures are designed to improve agricultural conditions on existing projects without increasing farm acreage.

The work will provide 2,955,000 men-days of work.

Steel Code "Joker" Permits Administration to Repudiate to SUI in White Steel Institute... Charges...
...U. S. Warrents Out Advance in Pay If Living Code Rise.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NRA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Roosevelt men say there's a joker in the steel code.

At first glance the approved code closely resembles that originally presented by the industry and thus strengthens the belief that the administration was above all anxious simply to get Steel under a code. (General

Johnson was more eager to fight Steel than was his boss, Roosevelt.)

But close reading indicates that

Uncle Sam has worked himself into the steel industry and is going to have a strong voice in it if not a whip hand.

Steel agreed that Johnson and one or two other administration representatives should be appointed to consult,

attend all meetings with and make recommendations to the board of directors of the Iron and Steel Institute.

All Records Open

The representatives will have access to all facts and statistics of the industry and report to Roosevelt with the expressed objective of assuring him

that consumers, employees and competitors are protected, that the public interest is protected and that purposes of the recovery act are carried out.

Roosevelt's own men will be on the job. Those who know what the president thought about Steel believe he will be a powerful force over the industry now that he has it under that code.

Man of Many Jobs

Chairman "Seaboard Bill" Stevenson

of the Home Loan Bank Board drew

plenty of criticism when he made A.

E. Hutchinson secretary both of that board and of the Home Owners' Loan

Corporation at combined salaries of $10,000. But it's just an old Stevenson custom.

South Carolinians recall that "Seaboard Bill," a former congressman,

was defeated for re-nomination last year by James P. Richards.

And the chief issue against him,

they say, was the fact that he had

"Two-Job Hutch" on the payroll here

as his secretary while the latter was drawing pay as a reading clerk in the South Carolina legislature.

Darrow Visits Richberg

Clarence Darrow and Donald R.

Richberg, chief counsel of NRA, held a joshing party as they left Richberg's

office and ran into a crew of newspapermen.

"When you pulled up your chair

and hunched over by desk, I said,

'Good god, he wants a job!'" declared

Richberg.

"No, you didn't," replied Darrow.

"You said, 'My God, here goes half a day—but I won't have to listen to Johnson!"

Darrow was asked what would happen after repeal of prohibition—he had been crusading for it for years.

"Oh, I suppose we'll all get drunk,"

he replied. "But after that we won't be near as anxious about liquor."

Sayed on the Job

The next minister to Costa Rica heard that his appointment had been approved, then worked all night and until 3 a. m. covering the steel code conference for his newspaper. He was surrounded by other correspondents, but didn't tell the news to a soul.

That was Leo R. Sack, correspondent for the Scripps-Howard newspapers. He is the first man chosen from the press gallery for an important post in the Roosevelt administration.

Placating U. S. Pay

Federal employees have it on the rest of us in the face of rising prices.

They are working along under a 15 per cent pay cut, but that reduction will be diminished in proportion if the cost of living rises.

The president every six months must ascertain the C. of L. as compared with a 1922 base period and if the difference shrinks to less than 15 per cent the percentage of pay cut will be changed to the same figure.

YOUR CHILDREN

Too Much Sympathy Softens a Child

It is a good idea to toughen children.

By this I mean to treat most emotions as if they didn't exist. We Americans want to bring our children up in bomb proof containers, and we do it. We want to shelter them from all the hurts and unpleasantnesses of life,

and we do that pretty well too.

But anything so sheltered gets very delicate. Skin gets thin and tissues soft—figuratively speaking. Our mental and moral tissues become too sensitive to stand hard knocks when life

becomes one pleasant holiday.

We'll take a boy today called Sammy. Small Sam by way of illustration has been given a nice red ball.

The neighbor children seize it and play with it and even shunt Sammy

out of the game.

Showing Pity

He runs in whining. His mother, says, "You poor little soul! Those nasty children!" She goes out, speaks her mind, retrieves the ball, and puts

Sammy out in the back yard to play

with it all by himself.

What has happened? She has shoved him into his bomb proof container.

But something else went in besides

Samuel—some unfortunate feelings.

One was ecstatic selfishness; another, revenge—served those kids right, the things mom said to them; another,

someone protecting him that took no

effort on his own part.

It was a smug little fellow who played ball alone in the back yard, just a little worse off than he had been five minutes before.

He got tired very soon. The ball had lost all its excitement and even its novelty. A ball is a social toy, not a diversion for solitude.

It would have been better if his mother had said, "What do you care,

my dear? Don't get all worked up about a ball. Go and get it yourself.

I can't fight your battles. If you can't get it, wait. Don't get mad about a piece of red rubber."

Even if Sammy gets licked in batting for his possessions and comes in with a black eye, it is better than having ten kinds of crooked emotions

packed into him about nothing.

Benefits of a Few Bumps

It is hard to do. We mothers suffer through that everlasting extended personality of ours in our children.

Hurt them and it kills us.

Yet we play a dangerous game when we sympathize and protect and fight their way for them. We are really kinder when we let them get a few bumps instead of stuffing the dozen emotions of self pity and its family into their heads and hearts.

No one wants to see a child really abused. No one wants to see him seemingly unhappy and imposed upon. But give me the child who does feel too deep about anything, who accepts reverses as they come, and who looks out at the world instead of inside at himself. He will be happier, healthier, tougher if you like.

Fine emotions aren't even first cousins

to self pity. They are in another class entirely. They are seldom developed by over-protection.

Include a few simple health rules in your beauty plans for fall.

It is difficult to attain true beauty

if you are not in good health. Shiny hair, smooth skin and a nice figure will probably be yours if you see that your body is in good condition.

Of course, you've heard many times

that everyone should drink from eight to ten glasses of water every day. Do you do it? Begin with two full glasses of lukewarm water in the morning.

Water cleanses the digestive tract

and will often go far toward clearing

a yellowish skin.

See your doctor frequently. Only a physician can tell you if there is anything organically wrong. But between visits to the doctor, map out a health routine for yourself.

Everyone needs exercise and most of us do not get nearly enough. Plan to walk part of the way to work each day and try to do a few simple setting-up exercises when you get out of bed in the morning.

Washington uncovered several "associations" with names which suggest official connection with the NRA. In these cases the NRA has compelled the offending outfits either to desist or specifically admit the lack of official connection on their letterheads.

The fight has been further spurred by Mark Eisner, chairman of the Bureau of Interpretation of the NRA, who has been active in helping to throw out of the nest all eggs that do not belong there.

Eisner reported one case where restaurant owners were assured they would, on payment of $10 "membership fee" be allowed a 68-hour week. President's Re-employment Act and the temporary restaurant code, both of which provide much shorter hours. One restaurant owner, who had signed his proper code and complied with it, refused to join a fake "association" which solicited him. A few hours later his restaurant was picketed by six men. But he fought back, reported the affair to NRA officials. The six "pickets" were arrested. A few hours later, six more appeared. They were arrested, too. Those cowbird eggs were smashed quickly.

Prey on Small Firms It is among small business men, many of whom find it hard to comply with the codes, that the racketeers have found the best pickings.

In New York's beauty shop trade, another racket was uncovered. A fake organization was found trying to get beauty shop proprietors to pay a $10 "membership fee" for promised advantages in the hairdressers' code. Once they had tricked a half dozen employers into signing their agreement, these racketeers had a good talking point with which to approach other employers.

They even threatened that the NRA would close shops which refused to sign with them.

The chief asset of these racketeers was in every case the ignorance of business men on whom they worked. Many of these were foreigners, who understood little of the NRA and were fearful of the mere mention of the power of Uncle Sam.

NEXT: What the NRA codes and trade associations mean to "Industrial hoodlums," to which more and more criminals are turning as prohibition repeal nears.

Bares Love Nests in Detective Role

Thrives on Gathering Evidence to Lead Innocent Women to Courts

Love nests that exist in cozy apartments and lonely beach cottages are brought to light in William Powell's latest starring vehicle "Private Detective 62," now showing at the Saenger.

In conjunction with the uncovering of the love nests there is exposed another racket, that of a certain class of private detective agencies that thrive on gathering evidence from clandestine love affairs for use in the divorce courts.

It is a spicy, if somewhat sorry business in which William Powell, in the title role, finds himself engaged after being unable to find any other kind of a job because he has been discredited by his government as a secret service operative through no fault of his own. Although much to his distaste, he carries on his work until commissioned to ruin a girl with whom he falls madly in love.

The attempts to frame innocent women, lead to startling and exciting incidents. There is a strong cast supporting Powell with Margaret Lindsay in the leading feminine role.

Ford Sales Show Gain in August

10-Day Period of This Month Breaks 2-Year-Old Record

Steadily mounting business levels in the mid-south, as reflected in sales of the New Ford V-8 throughout the area, were verified Thursday by figures from the Ford Motor Company branch in Memphis, showing more cars sold in the first ten days of August than in any 10-day period in more than two years.

From almost every part of the area, extending into six states covered by the Memphis Ford branch came reports of continued better sales and steadily improving outlook for the near future, according to Tom McLarty, manager of Hope Auto Co., local Ford dealers. City sales of Ford V-8's in Memphis kept pace, likewise setting a three years' record for any period of similar length.

The consistently climbing sales records in the Memphis area follow on the heels of a big record that has been set by Ford since March in Wayne county, Michigan, in which the City of Detroit is located. The Michigan figures, just compiled, show Ford far ahead of the field in July, having sold nearly twice as many units as the second car, and more than three times as many as the third.

July in Wayne County Michigan showed 2,204 Fords sold, as compared with 1,156 of the second car and 649 of the third. In commercial motor units and trucks, Ford also led handsomely in July, selling 131, as compared with 85 by the second manufacturer. The third does not make trucks.

For the five months ending July 31st, the Ford V-8 ran ahead of the tune of 8,590 cars sold in Wayne county, motordom's capital, compared with 5,096 for the second car and 2,701 for the third—or more Fords than the combined total of its two biggest rivals.

Editor The Star: An interesting experiment was tried out this year by the Hope Brick Works.

In August 1932 the brick yard crews were advised the brick plant would not run in the spring. There was no business in sight. They were advised to rent land and be prepared to do farming and make a living for themselves and families. None but two took the advice seriously. Two did rent land. The others said Hoover prosperity was just around the corner and did nothing.

On March 11th the brick yard shut down for three months. The men were then convinced, but not before. Not even a week before, that the brick plant was shut down for the first time in 32 years. What shall we do? Where shall we go? No jobs, no prospects, no nothing.

The brick yard has a farm, 165 acres of land in cultivation and this was divided up into gardens and fields for 16 of the men. The others had to rustle where they could and some of them, much against their will, had to rely on the R. F. C.

Each one who wanted a garden was given five-eighths of an acre rent free on which to produce vegetables. On this land crops of vegetables were planted at once and it has produced well. Irish potatoes did well. Sweet potatoes have grown wonderfully, as have beans, peas, tomatoes, all have been doing their part.

Each man was supplied with about eight acres additionally on which to grow crops, corn, cotton, peas, sorghum.

The cotton will be fair. One-half of it was plowed up during July and again planted to corn which is now about waist high and growing apace. Early corn was a failure. Grubs got most of the later planted corn but what was left is making corn. Field peas have done double duty. Sorghum gives promise of most splendid yields and each man has half an acre. Over a thousand gallons of syrup will be produced. Each family will have more than a plenty of corn for bread for six months, plenty of peas, sweet potatoes for all winter, and now that a fine rain has fallen at the right time turnips will be sown and no doubt will grow well.

Those 16 men have had some employment along the brick yard as orders came in and have stayed out of debt and now have a supply of produce to keep their families during the winter months. The brick yard is again shut down.

Sleeping Sickness Enters Arkansas

Death at Fort Smith Laid to Malady—Other Outbreaks

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—Scientists studying the "sleeping sickness" epidemic here were of the general belief that the encephalitis outbreaks in other parts of the country were of a different type than the St. Louis malady.

Two deaths believed to have been caused by sleeping sickness occurred in a Kansas City, Kan., hospital in the 24 hours, and six cases have been reported over Kansas. Ten cases have developed in Kansas City, Mo., health officials there said. Another death was reported at Fort Smith, Ark., Wednesday. The death list rose to 47 in St. Louis.

"There are two types of encephalitis which make their appearance in many communities," said Dr. Paul Zentay, assistant health commissioner. "They are the sporadic type, which usually follows another illness, such as measles, whooping cough or other types of body infection, and the lethargic encephalitis, which is a primary disease."

"Both types have been reported from various parts of the country for several years. But medical literature does not record any similar epidemic of the type now spreading in St. Louis in countries inhabited by Caucasians."

"This epidemic is similar in every detail to those in Japan which has suffered from eleven outbreaks since 1871, the last one in 1924. The mortality rate in Japan was higher, however."

"As to the cases reported from other cities and communities, there is a probability they are of the sporadic type."

"We are studying every development and angle of the epidemic in an effort to discover how it spreads, and every day we are more puzzled than before," said Dr. Zentay.
